Enforcement team inspect artist's work

Bungay paintings saga rumbles on

The controversy over street art being created in the heart of Bungay has seen council enforcement officers inspect the paintings.

East Suffolk Council inspectors have visited where the street art was painted on listed buildings by Vinnie Nylon.

Mr Nylon had painted buildings to promote an exhibition at the Fisher Theatre and a way of giving something to the town for free.

However the work was created without permission from East Suffolk Council, which is responsible for conservation zones.

A council spokesman said five sites have been visited by its planning enforcement officers and a review will take place.
